Weekly Newsletter

From the Director

December is fast approaching! The snow is here and Christmas is right around the corner!

Here is a little poem how children are so special and so different just like snow flakes!

Children are like snowflakes.

They are pure.

They are beautiful.

They are unique and they soar at their own pace.

They cannot be compared.

Classroom News

Discoverer (6wks-1yr)

We are sad to say but also happy to see that Camden, Matthew and Drake are moving up to the Explorer Room next week! We will miss you in our classroom!

This week we are enjoying the Christmas music, decorating and making presents!

When we aren't eating, sleeping or getting changed we are busy playing with blocks, bouncing and working on our walking skills.

Ms. Gerri

Explorer Classroom(1yr-2yr)

This week we had fun with music! We made our own maracas and a kazzo! We also worked with different instruments and objects that make noise. We also used our eyes and ears to a video with music. Our bible lesson was about The Battle of Jericho and the horns that the people used!

Next week we will be learning about wreaths and mistletoe.

Ms. Rhea

Inventors Classroom (2yr-3yr)

It sounds like everyone had a great Thanksgiving! To finish up with the month of November, we focused on our transportation theme. We painted with cars and worked with kinetic sand. We also played red light, green light and read lots of new and fun books. Next week, we will be moving right along to the month of December! It is an exciting time for Bible time because we get to learn about the true meaning of Christmas! To get ready for Christmas and a new month, you will see some changes in our classroom. The sensory table will have new things to explore with and the dramatic play area will be turned into a winter theme (surprise). We also get to put two new colors on our ice cream cone!

Next week's theme will be all about hibernation. What, when, where, why and how? These are the questions that we will learn about with our theme.

We would like to welcome Oliver to our classroom! He just turned two and will transition from the Explorer Room to our room on Monday!

Ms. Kellie
